STORIES OF OUR LIVES

Steve Toby

Twelve years after he was interviewed for one of eight "Lavender Scrolls", roving life-size exhibits depicting LGBTQ seniors, Steve Toby of Richmond was interviewed again last week as an update for the "Stories of Our Lives" column in this month's Lavender Notes. When he was interviewed by Lavender Seniors of the East Bay in 2006, he was 66; he will be 78 in October.

Born Janice Toby in San Francisco on 15th October 1940, Steve was the oldest of four children of a precision woodworker and his homemaking wife, an active volunteer in several programs, including Campfire Girls.

"Dad was self-employed with a workshop in the basement of our house," Steve recalls. "I spent a lot of time in the shop, leaning how to use various tools and machinery, being shown how blueprints work to build with precision. Dad was definitely not an 'absent father'. Though neither of my parents could be described as particularly 'nurturing', they were both definitely very caring. My brother, sisters and I had a good childhood with all of our physical needs always met."

The Toby siblings were part of an active network of 12 first cousins from both sides of the family, experiencing many family events, holiday get-togethers and generally friendly relatives, all in all. As a child, however, Steve was aware of feeling like a boy, strongly drawn to boys' toys, clothes and activities, but being urged by his mother and other family members to be less of a "tomboy" and spend more time with the 'more appropriate' girls' toys, clothes and activities.

Up until he was 12 years old and first read about Christine Jorgensen's "sex-change" in Denmark, however, he felt very much alone with his gender confusion. There was certainly nobody nearby to discuss such things with.

"I thought I was the only person who was unhappy about his gender, until I read that first Jorgensen story," Steve reminisces. "And then I presumed that Christine and I were the only TWO on the planet. This sudden burst of insight into my own confusion was not reinforced in my family or in the popular culture. There was nothing known or written about transsexuality in the popular media at the time, so it just wasn't being discussed."

Steve didn't consider himself particularly popular in high school, though he was active in the Lutheran church youth group and choir, teaching Sunday school and developing an interest in stamp and coin collecting. Some of his first semi-political awareness came as a member of the girls' athletic association, when it became clear that there were no intramural sports, uniforms and such for the girls, only for the boys.

"I think we all just took for granted that boys got all the perks of organized sports and scheduled events," Steve recalls somewhat bitterly. "Us girls were dealt with as somewhat second-class citizens with fewer opportunities for development, having to settle for the odd game during a PE class. Over my high school and college years, however, I signed up to learn about and participate in such activities as basketball, bowling, swimming and horseback-riding."

From his senior year in high school on through attending San Francisco State University for six years (earning a teaching credential), Steve participated in an ongoing platonic-but-allegedly-heterosexual relationship with a male friend of the family.

"Having a male 'date' for such things as social events and church activities gave me at least a modicum of social acceptance," Steve recalls, "although he and I never even held hands, much less did anything more. We were both intellectual, loved classical music, ushered at the San Francisco Opera and were more like brother and sister than boyfriend and girlfriend."

In 1963-64, Steve decided to join the Peace Corps. He spent three years in Malaysia as a Peace Corps Volunteer. "I taught math and science in a rural high school at a time when Malaysia was not nearly developed as it is now. I thoroughly enjoyed it and consider it one of the highlights of my life."

Back in the US, Steve took a job in San Francisco teaching math to junior high school students. It was a rough ride. At the end of two years, he went to a two-week retreat which changed his life.

"I realized how stress-free I had felt during that retreat, compared to how stressful my teaching job was," Steve recalls. "I decided to resign my teaching post. I just knew I couldn't go back to the stress of teaching."

He subsequently worked at various jobs, primarily in the computer field. He was a research assistant at San Francisco's public health hospital. When that job ended, he spent a brief period receiving food stamps, which displeased his mother.

"She informed me that she would rather clean toilets than apply for food stamps," Steve recalls.

Steve then got a job as a mail carrier. This also made his mother angry as she felt it was beneath his dignity. Steve said he thought carrying mail was a step above cleaning toilets.

Steve became a programmer and coder for UC-Berkeley for six years, after which he was hired by the City and County of San Francisco as the only woman in the computer division.

"I had a difficult boss and after seven years, I was ready to quit," Steve recalls, "but I also knew I was probably too old by then to get a new job elsewhere and work long enough to have a significant retirement package and ongoing health care. So I stayed on for 20 years. I must say that, during that 20 years, I experienced much more sexism from being a woman than I subsequently felt from transphobia as a transman!"

In 2001, the City/County of San Francisco approved transgender health benefits for employees and retirees. That prompted him to move forward on his transition. Steve attended his first transgender support group at that time. Within one year, he had taken major steps toward his transition. Recent changes in the standards of care meant that he could move forward without much delay.

"I was like a race-horse that had been at the starting gate for 61 years" Steve recalls. "I first saw my transition therapist in July 2001, and immediately started hormone treatment. I had my top surgery in January of 2002 and my legal name change went through in February of 2002. I waited seven years for the bottom surgery, going back and forth between wanting the surgery and questioning whether at my age, I really needed it. I made the decision to go when I realized it was necessary in case I wound up some day in a 24-hour care facility where I might be forced to live as defined by my genitals."

Since his transition, Steve has been very involved in providing education for medical, mental health and social service providers, participated in the Lavender Scrolls project, helped Lavender Seniors conduct trainings and did a lot public speaking on the issue. He was also a peer facilitator of an FTM (female-to-male) support group at Pacific Center for many years.

"Even though I was old enough to be the father or grandfather of all the other guys, I felt accepted and respected." Steve recalls.

Coming out as a transman to family and friends – once he knew for sure what was going on with him – was mostly uneventful, though some friends and family across the country (e.g., a cousin in Pennsylvania) found out via an article in the San Francisco Chronicle.

"My story post-transition is not as 'angst-filled' as many others might be," Steve opines. "When I told my father, for instance, it went like this. I asked him how he felt about people having surgery to change their sex. His initial response was very compassionate, saying things like 'oh, how sad – they must suffer so much!' But when I told him that I was trans, as well, it was initially like I had punched him in the stomach. But, as it turns out, like any caring parent, he was mostly concerned about my happiness, safety and security. One nephew has since told me he's never seen me so happy; one sister was loyal but never totally comfortable with it."

Steve is pretty open about his feelings toward relationships and sexuality, in general.

"I've always had a pretty low libido, both as female and male," Steve recalls, "But when I started taking testosterone, I went through male adolescence and was very turned on. That resulted in a one-year relationship with a female friend of mine. But eventually the hormone high came down and I realized I'm attracted to men, not women. So I went back to being unattached. Still, I've always longed for companionship – perhaps 'with benefits' – though it's never taken the 'want-to-get-married' fantasy as either woman or man. Besides, never having been part of the gay community and being elderly, bald and short I don't feel like I'm particularly a candidate for getting hooked up with a gay partner at this point."

Steve still lives in the Richmond house he bought back in 1980. He pursues his childhood interest in stamp and coin collecting (he is president of a stamp club). One of his primary interests for the past few years comes via the East Bay Chapter of the Native Plant Society, for which he serves on the Tilden Park Nursery steering committee. He helps raise plants from seeds and cuttings, plus encourages and educates landscapers on how best to incorporate native plants into their gardening schemes. He is also a member of Ashby Village and helps by giving seniors rides and helping people in their homes as a handyman, having learned such skills long ago in his father's basement workshop.

Thank you, Steve, for your contributions to not only the LGBTQ community, but to the planet!

[Editor's note: For those who might want to know more about Lavender Seniors' "Lavender Scrolls" project – or Steve Toby's contribution to it – the following hyperlinks will take you there. One of the scrolls – called simply the "Silent Scroll" – speaks to the ongoing need many LGBTQ seniors have to keep their identities secret, for fear they'll be subjected to homophobia/transphobia, rejection, mistreatment and/or abuse in their tender senior years – particularly those who have suffered from any of these forms of discrimination at previous points in their lives.]

BOOK REVIEW

Harvey Milk: His Lives & Death

By Lillian Faderman

Faderman is a noted historian of gay and lesbian rights.

Time Magazine considers Harvey Milk as one of the most significant figures of the 20th Century.

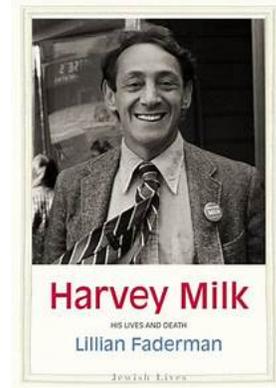

Before his big breakthrough in lavender rights he worked as a school teacher, labored on Wall Street and supported Barry Goldwater. As a teenager he was a big fan of grand opera. He also joined the U. S. Navy.

Harvey's political adventure took off when he met Dianne Feinstein and Jim Foster, head of the Alice B. Toklas Memorial Democratic Club. In 1971 he was their first gay person to speak at the Democratic Convention.

I first encountered Harvey at his camera shop in the Castro. I didn't buy any film.

Faderman has delivered a stunning political adventure that all admirers should promote. Conservative writers should also remember this stunning political history. Harvey Milk's enemies could never keep him down. Only a bullet could do that.

CONNECTIONS

Have you moved out of the area, do you want to get in contact with other Lavender Seniors near you or someone you have lost contact with? Email us and we will try to help out. No information will be shared without your specific permission.

LAVENDER SENIORS FRIENDLY VISITOR PROGRAM HAS VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES AVAILABLE.

Volunteers with the Lavender Seniors Friendly Visitor program are background checked, interviewed and trained, after which they are matched with a senior to visit regularly, usually for a couple hours each week. Visitors can share stories, chat about mutual interests and current events, and if both are willing and able, volunteers can take their seniors out for a walk in the park, a bite to eat, a cup of coffee, shopping or maybe a movie or a trip to the museum.

We ask volunteers to make a commitment of at least six months.

If you are in need of a Friendly Visitor, we can help with that too!

Please contact karen@lavenderseniors.org and we will be in touch with you soon. Thank You!

"Call Me By Your Name"

Many in the LGBTQ community have already seen this month's Third Wednesday film series presentation, though perhaps not sitting in a room of like-minded kindred spirits. Either way, it's worth seeing a second (or third) time! Nominated this year for four Academy awards, "Call Me by your Name" is one of those films that couldn't have been made when most LGBTQ seniors were youngsters attending the Saturday morning matinee at their home-town or urban movie theater. (Of course, in the 1940s-50s, the closeted young LGBTQ person could also show up clutching only a quarter; then, for 25 cents, see a cartoon, a newsreel, a double feature AND get a box of popcorn and a soda, to boot)...! Not so in 2018!

The film takes place in the summer of 1983. Precocious 17-year-old Jewish-Italian-American Elio Perlman (played by Timothy Chalamet, nominated for two Academy Awards this year), is spending the languid days with his family at their 17th-century villa in Lombardy, Italy. Oliver, a handsome Jewish-American doctoral student (played by Armie Hammer), arrives from the U.S. to work as this year's summer intern for Elio's researcher-professor father (perhaps a bit on the closeted side himself). Amid the sun-drenched splendor of coastal Italy, Elio and Oliver discover the heady beauty of awakening desire over the course of a summer that will alter their lives forever.

Based on the best-selling 2007 novel of the same name by American author, André Aciman, the film chronicles the blossoming relationship between Elio and Oliver, a summer romance that affects both of their lives. Though the film only takes them through the first few months after their budding gay connection, the novel describes the long-term effect on both of their lives over the next two or three decades, so viewers might want to buy the book, take it out of the library or download it as an e-book to get the full range of the novel's reach.

Young Elio literally in hot pursuit of Oliver

The guys have finally connected

Teen Elio feeling the heartbreak of first love

Incidentally, the film did win an Academy Award for James Ivory in the "Best Adapted Screenplay" category. The 89-year-old Ivory (of Merchant & Ivory fame) was the oldest winner of a competitive Oscar in the history of the Academy (which might give us creative seniors a second wind). Merchant & Ivory Productions collaborated on several gay-themed films like E.M. Forster's "Maurice". In fact, Ivory's original direction of Armie Hammer in this current film called for two frontal-nudity scenes (some might think of Ivory as a "dirty old man"?), which Hammer ultimately declined to do for fear his teen-age daughter would see his junkie on Instagram one day, he explained. Interested viewers must settle for a few rear-end "butt-shots" of the 30-year-old 6'5" actor (who had no stunt doubles on the set).

The Lavender Seniors film series is held in the fully-accessible Carnegie Lecture Hall at the San Leandro Public Library, 300 Estudillo. Screening begins at 1pm on the Third Wednesday, 15th August 2018. Following the showing, there will be a brief evaluation and discussion of the film.

The library can be reached via BART (five blocks above the San Leandro station), AC-Transit (two blocks above the E. 14th and Estudillo bus-stop), Bancroft Avenue, Highways 580 or 880. Ample two- and three-hour parking is available.

Dear Community Members,

The County of Alameda and the Alameda County-Oakland Community Action Partnership (AC-OCAP) are now accepting applications for two exciting community engagement opportunities. Please see the announcements below for more information.

Sincerely,
Supervisor Wilma Chan

Alameda County Citizens Academy

The Alameda County Citizens Academy is a free 6-session interactive program that provides insight to County services and operations and offers opportunities for civic engagement in the County.

It provides an excellent opportunity for the community to increase their knowledge of county government and its impact. Through presentations by top County leaders, participants benefit from a unique interactive learning and behind the scenes experience. Refreshed programming includes tours of key County facilities, demonstrations of specialized equipment, hands-on exercises designed to illustrate the impact of County services in the community and opportunities for citizen engagement.

The program's goals are to provide the community with a better understanding about what is required to run the county, promote civic engagement, and connect Alameda County residents to one another.

Applications are due by August 5, 2018. Fifty (50) participants are selected on a first-come, first-served basis (with consideration given to geographic location to ensure representation to all five Board of Supervisors districts).

Applications are available online: <http://www.acgov.org/academies/citizens/index.htm>.

(Editor's Note: Lavender Seniors member and your newsletter editor had the opportunity to participate in this last year, it was a great experience! I highly recommend taking the opportunity to do this! - Beckie)

AC-OCAP Board

AC-OCAP, Alameda County-Oakland Community Action Partnership, is committed to reducing poverty by providing services and programs targeted to low-income individuals and families. AC-OCAP has been funding programs and projects in the low-income community since 1971. AC-OCAP is now accepting applications for openings in Oakland CDBG Districts 1, 2 & 6, and one opening in Alameda County (excluding Oakland and Berkeley).

The AC-OCAP Administering Board members are responsible for planning, developing, and executing the local Community Action Plan for alleviating poverty and working toward institutional change to enhance the ability of low-income residents to achieve self-sufficiency in Oakland and throughout Alameda County (excluding the City of Berkeley). AC-OCAP's priority focus areas are: family self-sufficiency, job training and employment placement, housing and community economic development, supportive services, civic engagement, advocacy, and capacity building.

Applications are due on a rolling basis until all openings are filled. The deadline for the first round is August 30, 2018. Applications are available online: <http://www.ac-ocap.com/>.

An LGBTQ Version of "Oklahoma"?
No WAY!!

For those who may have been unaware – as Lavender Seniors board members were until recently – there has been an exciting LGBTQ development this year at the Oregon Shakespeare Festival in Ashland – just 5+ hours’ drive north! Bill Rauch, long-time OSF artistic director – departing Ashland next spring to become the first artistic director of the Perelman Center at the World Trade Center in New York – decided to use his chops as an out gay director to mount a longed-for all-LGBTQ version of “Oklahoma!” as his swan song at this year’s festival.

Many gay men – pre-pubescent/adolescent when we may have been drooling over Gordon MacRea (or over Shirley Jones perhaps for young lesbians) – belting out such classic show-tunes as “Oh What a Beautiful Morning” and “People Will Say We’re In Love” in the 1955 film version – are eager to see how that gender change works in the OSF “same-sex” version.

So, Lavender Seniors has reserved seats (at a reduced $35 Lavender Seniors rate) for the Monday, 1st October, 8pm performance so that some of us East Bay LGBTQ seniors can indeed venture north to witness this innovative and inclusive take on the first-ever collaboration on a musical between Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein.

The mixed-race lesbian lead couple

The guys all dancing together

The lead gay male couple serenading each other

Before he could modify the script, cast a lesbian couple, a gay male couple and “Aunt Eller” as a transwoman, however, Rauch had to approach the Rodgers and Hammerstein estate to get permission to mount such a production – which he did! Reviews have been “over the moon”, including extensive standing ovations from most appreciative audiences.

One of the perks OSF is providing for Lavender Seniors is a next-morning 10am session with the actors from “Oklahoma” (including out LGBTQ actors) who will talk about the performance from their perspectives. The festival will be providing the venue and the actors for free to us.

Those interested in attending this performance can contact JohnDavid@LavenderSeniors.org to be put on a list of participants. Admission tickets will be $35 apiece. Transportation will not be included in the package, but arrangements have been made at three levels for those who will attend and need accommodation for one or two nights (listed from least to most expensive – all accommodations/theaters have wheelchair/walker accessibility available):

- Green Springs Inn: An LGBTQ-friendly B&B approximately a half-hour up a mountain outside of Ashland. Two-person cabins at $51.90 per person (including 1.8% tax). If anyone wants a single room, the cost will be $103.80. Breakfast is included and other meals are available on request (and payment). <http://www.greenspringsinn.com/>
- Holiday Inn Express: A corporate hotel with no particular policy on LGBTQ customers. Located three miles from the theater with no shuttle service available. Basic continental breakfast included. Double rooms at $79.32 per person (including 11.8% tax). Anyone wanting a single room, the cost will be $158.64 (including 11.8% tax). <https://www.ihg.com/holidayinnexpress/hotels/us/en/ashland/hsa/or/hoteldetail>
- Arden Forest Inn: A gay-owned/operated inn walking distance to the theater with off-street parking and a two-course gourmet breakfast. Theater-knowledgeable hosts. Double rooms at $100 per person (including 11.8% tax); one upstairs suite has two bedrooms (accommodating four people – one room with a queen bed and the other with twin beds) still $100/person (including 11.8% tax). <https://afinn.com/results.cfm>

People are free to make any other arrangements for accommodations, of course, since these are just three that have been tentatively arranged by Lavender Seniors.

For those who may want to see a second play in the Festival, Lavender Seniors has also reserved $35 seats for the 1:30pm matinee performance of “Manahatta” (Lenape language for Manhattan) Tuesday, 2nd October. The world-premiere production of this ground-breaking play, written by celebrated playwright, activist and attorney, Mary Kathryn Nagle, deals with the tragic consequences of Europeans “conquering” Native American peoples, beginning with “buying” the island of Manhattan from the Lenape tribe for the legendary $24 worth of trinkets. Melding the past with the future – switching between 17th-century New York and 21st-century Oklahoma – the play has received rave reviews since it opened at OSF in March. For those with the interest, time and financial ability, on the third day, Wednesday, 3rd October, some $35 seats have been reserved for the 1:30pm matinee performance of Shakespeare’s “Othello”.

21st century Lenape vs 17th century in

“Othello”

Obviously, anyone can decide to take advantage of other productions at the Festival, but these are the only ones currently receiving the $35 discounted rate for Lavender Seniors and allies.

The festival and accommodations packages require a 25% non-refundable deposit by Wednesday, 22nd August, which means Lavender Seniors must have a list of those intending to attend by then, in order to confirm all reservations. The final non-refundable payment is due in full on Monday, the 3rd September.

Individual transportation arrangements for the 345-mile trek between Oakland and Ashland can include any of the following (one-way, using 65+ senior rates, whenever available):

- Driving/car-pooling can take 5-6 hours straight up Highway 5. Estimated fuel cost $35.50. Directions
- Greyhound bus – 15.5 hours (beginning at 1am) - $53-$58/person, one-way, depending on day of departure. Bus Schedule
- Amtrak: 15 hours (beginning Jack London at 9:39pm, including transfer to Amtrak bus at Klamath Falls, OR) - $73.80 - $311.30, one-way, depending on whether sitting up or in stateroom. Train Tickets
- Airline (SFO-MFR): Only local flight is United Airlines from San Francisco to Rogue Valley International Airport in Medford. $167-$319 (one-way), depending on day of departure. Non-stop flights take 90 minutes. Find a Flight

When the Downtown Oakland Senior Center takes its twice-a-year trips (three days) to Ashland, they hire a bus to take 65 people each time. The cost for that entire trip (including play tickets, transportation, accommodation, many meals and lectures) is generally about $500/person. Their next Ashland trip is 4th-6th September. Since they already saw “Oklahoma” on their April trip (<http://www2.oaklandnet.com/oakca1/groups/dhs/documents/marketingmaterial/oak068832.pdf>), they won't be including it – nor "Manahatta" or "Othello" – on their upcoming September trip.

Lavender Seniors needs to finalize arrangements by the 22nd of August, so anyone interested should contact JohnDavid@LavenderSeniors.org before then to be considered for inclusion – first-come/first-served.

Need a Ride? Easy Pick-Up with Just One Call

VIP Zip – Rides for Seniors

VIP Zip, a partnership between LIFE Elder Care, the California State Automobile Association (CSAA), Lyft and Uber Health, is an EASY and SAFE ride service for seniors. The program has been declared a success after a three-month pilot program ended on July 31st. An on-demand ride anywhere in the county is just a phone call away! Program staff can take your call any time between 9am and 4:30pm, Monday through Friday.

VIP Zip will monitor your ride to make sure you arrive at your pre-determined destination safely and on time.

To see a video of how the system works: <https://lifeeldercare.org/get-help/vip-zip/>

The program is particularly designed for seniors who either don't have a smart-phone or are uncomfortable using it, according to Patricia Osage, Life Elder Care's Executive Director. There is low-income assistance available, so you can ask about subsidized rides when you call the VIP Zip number, she said!

Go anywhere you want, whenever you want, using the following steps.

When you need a ride, start by calling (510) 820-3201 to get started with VIP ZIP. If you are 60+ and live in Alameda County, VIP Zip will help you get to where you need to go during the week on YOUR schedule.

Once you sign up, it is easy to pay with a credit or debit card on file with VIP/ZIP. You will pay only for the cost of the ride, no additional fees.

This service should help Alameda County seniors (including LGBTQ!) gain better access to healthcare and life's necessities. In addition, VIP Zip customers can make spontaneous trips to visit family or friends or to go strolling in the park; visit the doctor or run to the store to pick up last minute groceries. There is no need to wait for the bus or to inconvenience someone else. This door-to-door service takes the hassle out of travel.

If you're ready to get started, call (510) 820-3201 or visit www.VIPZip.org. Another way to sign up or ask questions, contact Valerie - vdraeseke@LifeElderCare.org - (for Fremont, Newark, and Union City); contact Andrea M - amok@LifeElderCare.org (for all other Alameda County locations), or sign up online - <https://lifeeldercare.org/services-sign-up-form/>.

To see an example of how the system works with Uber, see www.UberHealth.com.

Here's a quick look at how Uber Health works with VIP Zip:

1: A healthcare associate (calling 510-820-3201) books a ride on demand or for a future appointment, using the Uber Health dashboard to seamlessly coordinate rides for those in need.

2: The passenger is contacted by text or call with their trip details at the time the ride is booked and once again when a driver is on the way to pick them up.

3: The passenger is picked up and dropped off on schedule. No additional action on behalf of the healthcare associate is required to get them to and from care.

VIP Zip is a partnership between Life Elder Care, CSAA, Lyft and Uber Health
