Always aiming high, this month’s “Stories of Our Lives” subject, Mark Fickes, is currently seeking to join the ever-increasing number of openly LGBTQ judges in California. Since 1979, when then-Governor Jerry Brown nominated Joe Quinn to the Superior Court as the first LGBTQ judge in the state, the numbers of “out” California judges is now approaching 60.

Born in San Francisco in March 1966, Mark was the only child of an architect and his wife, who was primarily a homemaker, but who was also a corporate recruiter. His parents were divorced when he was four, so he describes his childhood as “challenging”.

“Both sets of grandparents played major roles in my life as I was growing up,” Mark recalls. “My maternal grandparents fled the Nazi invasion of Austria prior to World War II. Dad died when I was nine years old and – though my Mom remarried – she struggled with substance abuse which limited her role as an attentive parent until I was grown. We’re good friends now, though, of course, and she is a wonderful grandmother to my kids.”
Early on, he struck a deal with his grandparents about his education.

“My grandparents offered to pay for me to go to boarding school down in Ojai,” Mark says, “in return for my agreeing to work my own way through college. As a result, I consider myself fortunate to have had world-class education throughout my life. Because I had to work for it as a young adult, it has helped make me the man, the husband and the father I am today.”

Mark majored in French at UC-Berkeley, receiving his B.A. in 1987. Then he decided to go across the country to earn his M.A. in French at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore in 1990. More importantly, however, Baltimore is where he met Billy, the love of his life.

“I was thinking of going on for a PhD in French,” Mark recalls. “I had seen this cute guy around town and had my eye on him when I went to France for several months. When I returned, it seems that Billy had moved into an apartment downstairs from mine and we began running into each other in the hallways of the building. The evolution from neighbors to boyfriends to husbands is the story of our 29 years together! We soon decided we shouldn’t be paying for two separate places, since we were always together – he moved in with me in March 1991 and we’ve been together ever since!”

By November of 1991, Mark had decided to shift gears a bit, applied at UC-Hastings College of Law, hoping that Billy – born and raised in Baltimore – would be willing to move with him after he was accepted. He was.

“Billy’s roots were all in Baltimore – his father a doctor, his mother an innovative pre-school developer and a large extended Catholic family with 40 cousins – so I was initially worried he might not want to leave all that,” Mark recalls. “But he said there was never any doubt in his mind that he wanted us to be together wherever and forever. So we packed up our Tercel, our dog, arranged to load our few belongings into a shared moving van, headed west and began our new life back in the Bay area. We’ve had the odd challenge here and there, of course, but overall, it turned out to be a most auspicious move for us!”

He finished law school at Hastings and passed the bar (the first time!) in 1995. He worked as a Deputy District Attorney in Santa Clara County, where he stayed for five years. Then he joined a Palo Alto firm for 18 months, worked for a “boutique” law firm in Walnut Creek for two years, spent eight years in the Enforcement Division of the Securities and Exchange Commission, became a partner in a small law firm for two years, then became a partner in his current law firm in 2014. One of the reasons he left the SEC was that Billy was dropped from his health insurance because same-sex marriage wasn’t legal yet at the time.

Early in the 21st century, the couple began seriously discussing their desire to have a family. They embarked on a most exciting journey via Mark’s sperm, an egg donor and a surrogate mother.

“Our fraternal twins are almost 15 1/2 years old now,” Mark says, “bringing me to the most important post I’ve ever held in my life: father! Our daughter and our son are our pride and joy, fulfilling a dream I’ve held since my own childhood of being part of a full-time, loving nuclear family! At the end of each day, the four of us share the joys, sorrows and triumphs we’ve each experienced that day – as well as our hopes and dreams for the future. This is something that can’t be compared with anything else in my life!”

The twins call Billy “Daddy” and Mark “Poppa,” being in four-way touch at various times during each day. During this interview, for example, their 15-year-old son had to call Mark and tell him about a wrestling match he’d just taken part in at school. Their daughter is also an athlete, participating on the volleyball team.

“The kids have known from day one that their fathers are gay,” Mark explains, “and it’s no more an issue to them than our eye-color or shoe size! We’ve had to overcome some potentially awkward moments with our daughter, since we obviously don’t have first-hand experience with what an adolescent teenage
His own parents were not always as supportive about Mark’s sexuality as his friends, most colleagues and his children.

“I was 21 when I came out to my mother, step-father and some friends,” Mark recalls. “Since Mom had mostly lived and worked in San Francisco, she had gay friends. Of course, coming out in the middle of the AIDS epidemic complicated their responses, with concerns about it being a ‘harder way to live’ and fears about long-term health issues for the gay community. Sad to say, I never came out to my grandparents because I was fearful of their reaction. Maybe they would’ve been okay with it, but I wasn’t willing to take the chance. That’s something I regret to this day, as my grandparents all passed away within a couple of years of my coming out.”

Mark is actively involved with BALIF (Bay Area Lawyers for Individual Freedom) the oldest and largest organization of LGBTQ attorneys. His focus on public interest law was renewed in 2011 when he provided counsel pro bono during an elder abuse case. He realized he could make more of a difference in the lives of vulnerable people, than he did working at the SEC. That has contributed to his interest in becoming a judge.

“When the kids were little, I pretty much stayed out of politics,” Mark explains. “Now that they’re much more independent, the old man can start trying his wings again, also! When, for instance, Tara Flanagan first suggested I use my background to try for a seat on the bench as an openly-gay man, I thought she must be talking to somebody else. Soon, though, I began to see that my skills could be useful in helping oversee that justice is done in the community!”

So what would happen if somebody ELSE gets a clear majority next month and the election doesn’t go forward into the November ballot?

“Well, I’ll still have that most important job – fatherhood,” Mark responds, “as well as a loving husband, a successful law practice, my involvement with political groups in the community and my ongoing dedication in my synagogue, Temple Beth Abraham in Oakland.”

Mark was the first openly-gay president of the synagogue, 2013-16. He teaches sixth grade at the temple’s religious school. The twins had bar and bat mitzvahs, but are less inclined to be heavily involved than he is, attending services or activities with him only a few times a year.

“When I was growing up, my family would not have been considered particularly ‘observant,’” Mark says. “As an adult – and an out member of the LGBTQ community – it has meant a lot to me to have my faith community as a second family. It saddens me when I see or hear about people in the LGBTQ community who don’t feel connected to such a second family. It has been a huge source of strength, inspiration and support for me.”

The family continues being very active – at home and abroad!

The family still lives in their Oakland-Rockridge District home with their German shepherd, Jake. The couple got married in September 2013.

“We were hanging out in Tahoe with friends one day,” Mark recalls, “and I suggested we ought to run to a local chapel and get married. My son thought we should have a formal wedding – not some quickie service in a Nevada wedding chapel. When the time came, we rounded up 40 or so of our friends and tied the knot and have never regretted it. Next year, we’ll be celebrating 30 years together – I guess that’s officially our pearl anniversary, right?!“

Thanks to Mark, Billy and the twins for sharing your inspiring story. It’s good to have your little family in our neighborhood!

BOOK REVIEW

The Journalist of Castro Street:
The Life of Randy Shilts
By Andrew E. Stoner

Stoner is an assistant professor of Communication Studies at CSU-Sacramento and the author of "Campaign Crossroads".

Randy Shilts was known mainly for his news columns. He struggled with alcohol and street drugs. He died of AIDS.

He appeared on ABC's Nightline and Larry King Live.

Some gay men rejected him and called him a "self-hating faggot".

Historians and fans of gay history will savor every word.

LAVENDER SENIORS FRIENDLY VISITOR PROGRAM HAS VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES AVAILABLE.
Volunteers with the Lavender Seniors Friendly Visitor program are background checked, interviewed and trained, after which they are matched with a senior to visit regularly, usually for a couple hours each week. Visitors can share stories, chat about mutual interests and current events, and if both are willing and able, volunteers can take their seniors out for a walk in the park, a bite to eat, a cup of coffee, shopping or maybe a movie or a trip to the museum.

We ask volunteers to make a commitment of at least six months.

If you are in need of a Friendly Visitor, we can help with that too!

Please contact us at karen@lavenderseniors.org or (510) 424-7240 and we will be in touch with you soon. Thank You!

I Do

This month, Lavender Seniors is shining a light on issues of LGBTQ immigration. The February presentation in the LGBTQ-themed film series (Wednesday, 19th February) is the 2012 film, “I Do”, concerning the problems that can be involved when a gay man tries to stay in the U.S. via acquiring a green card. Two days later (Friday, 21st February) an El Cerrito-based immigration attorney will expand on those issues at the Third Friday Lunch Bunch (see blurb elsewhere in this newsletter).

“I Do”, written by its star - and former Bad Boys Inc member - David W Ross is an earnest look at the lack of equality facing LGBTQ community members seeking green card status in the US, then and now.

Ross plays Jack, a gay British photographer who has lived in New York since he was 17. His brother Peter (Grant Bowler) is also living in the city, along with his newly pregnant American wife, Mya (Alicia Witt). The film opens with a tragic event, fast forwards seven years to a point where Jack has big family responsibilities and a big problem with his visa.
The only option to leaving the country, it seems, is to marry for a green card. Jack’s best pal, lesbian Ali (Jamie-Lynn Sigler) has just split up with her lover. But is she prepared to risk jail to help her buddy out? Sounds like a bad idea, right? And that’s before sexy Spanish architect Mano (Maurice Compte) enters the fray, complicating Jack’s decisions by becoming the love of his life.

Ali’s dilemma gives viewers the chance to explore her position as a pawn in the same-sex immigration game, though the director also seems to want to ensure that viewers get the message that married gay couples (in 2012) lacked rights under the law. The film theoretically becomes part of LGBTQ history with the Supreme Court’s June 2015 Obergefell vs. Hodges decision making same-sex marriage rights “the law of the land”. As is commonly known, of course, this decision is harder to enforce in some jurisdictions than in others, with the current administration threatening to undo some of the progress made in the area of LGBTQ rights.

Straddling two worlds: Jack is gay, married to and living with Ali, being in love with Spanish-speaking Mano

One of the nicest touches in the film is the character of Sam, played by long-time indie publicist and some-time actor Mickey Cottrell. He is the seen-it-all elder statesman of Jack’s pals and gives a sense of how far the LGBT community has travelled in its struggle for equality even as much of the rest of the film shows how far there still is to go.

As mentioned last month, the San Leandro Public Library at 300 Estudillo is planning a two-month renovation of our usual film series venue (the Carnegie Lecture Hall). Though there was a one-month reprieve for the month of January (“Adam” was shown in that venue, though with some sound difficulties), February and March films are scheduled to be held in Conference Room B upstairs (access via elevator and stairs).

The film will be shown at 1pm on Wednesday, 19 February, followed by a brief discussion and evaluation of the film and its relevance to the LGBTQ community of 2020.

The library can be accessed via BART (five blocks above the San Leandro BART station), AC-Transit (two blocks above the Estudillo and E. 14th Street bus stop). Those driving to the film can access the library via Bancroft Avenue, I-580 and I-880. There is ample two- and three-hour parking available in both the adjacent parking lot and diagonal street parking.
As many in the community know, LGBTQ immigrants/refugees/asylum-seekers face unusually difficult circumstances trying to enter the U.S., particularly during the current administration. Two transwomen have been known to die in ICE custody in the last two years alone and – depending on the source – between 20 and 40 immigrants (unclear how many of them are LGBTQ) of all ages have died in custody during the Trump administration alone.

Last week, 45 Democratic Congressional representatives - led by Rep. Mike Quigley of Illinois – contacted ICE demanding that all transgender individuals be released from custody.

Though the Supreme Court’s landmark June 2015 Obergefell vs Hodges decision made same-sex marriage “the law of the land,” there continue to be reports of problems for both single and married LGBTQ individuals getting visas, green cards and citizenship, moreso than under previous 20th- and 21st-century administrations.

On hand to discuss these and other LGBTQ-related immigration issues at this month’s Third Friday Lunch Bunch will be Dustin Bankston, an El Cerrito-based immigration lawyer who works closely with his husband – also an immigration lawyer – and a knowledgable staff of lawyers and paralegals to assist in the fight for equal treatment for all in our country’s troubled immigration system.

Dustin Bankston, Principal Attorney - dustin@bankstonimmigration.com - (510) 542-2900

Dustin is a member of the California State Bar and a Certified Specialist in Immigration and Nationality Law. He is an active member of the American Immigration Lawyers Association (AILA). He also volunteers at community organizations in the Bay Area, including his active participation in the Oakland Gay Men’s Chorus.

Dustin graduated with a juris doctor from University of the Pacific McGeorge School of Law in Sacramento with distinction. While in law school, Dustin began training in immigration law by working in the immigration clinic and helping low-income individuals with their cases. After he graduated, he volunteered at the East Bay Sanctuary Covenant by attending asylum interviews with indigenous Guatemalans and LGBT asylum seekers.
Upon completing law school, he pursued his dream of opening an immigration law practice. He loves serving his clients and mapping out the best immigration options available according to each individual’s situation. He is fully proficient in Spanish.

This month’s Third Friday Lunch Bunch will be from 12-2pm on Friday, 21st February, at the North Oakland Senior Center, 5714 MLK Jr Way (corner 58th Street). A nutritious lunch (including vegetarian options) will be served promptly at noon. After a brief period for announcements, the program will be turned over to Justin around 12:45.

The entrance and ample parking are at the rear of the building (off 58th Street).

Lavender Seniors Hops on the Census2020 Train

Lavender Seniors was notified recently by the United Way of the Bay Area (UWBA) that it has been selected to be one of several agencies funded to assist in making sure members of the LGBTQ community are counted in the 2020 census. Since representation in legislative bodies and apportionment of available funds is based on numbers of people in a district, it is estimated that for every person NOT counted, his/her district will lose $2,000/year, meaning that $20,000 would be lost per uncounted person over the decade between 2020 and the next decennial census in 2030.

Nearly 150,000 “listers” have been knocking on doors since August 2019 to make sure the Census Bureau has a comprehensive list of all addresses – urban and rural – in the country. Each address will receive census information by mail in March 2020, after which enumerators will be dispatched between April and July 2020 to make sure everyone is counted.

Lavender Seniors will assist members of the LGBTQ community to make sure they are all counted, even though any specific references to sexual orientation and gender identity were promptly removed by the Trump administration in March 2017 from proposed census planning. This screenshot of how that planning process changed overnight is revealed in this graphic – dated 28 March 2017 – from the National Lesbian and Gay Task Force:

- We’ve been ERASED!

For information on why it is still important that LGBTQ seniors be counted in Census 2020, check out this two-minute YouTube video: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uHGHL4HZjYY

[Editor’s Note: Since enumerators are still being hired for the census, Lavender Seniors is trying to finalize someone from Census 2020 being on hand for five minutes at this month’s Third Friday Lunch Bunch to describe how anyone can apply for the many posts still open in this process.]
In the waning days of 2019, Lavender Seniors of the East Bay was awarded the Community Leadership award from the Alameda County Psychological Association. Accompanying the award was a substantial donation. We are most grateful for the recognition. The award and the photograph of receipt is shown below.

We were honored by this award as it reflects the growing recognition of Lavender Seniors for its Community Leadership thru our direct service to LGBTQ seniors. Year 2019 was a banner year for Lavender Seniors East Bay for all the acknowledgments bestowed including the Resolution from State Senator Nancy Skinner, Oakland City Council, Congresswoman Barbara Lee, City of San Leandro and the presence of San Leandro Mayor Pauline Cutter and Congresswoman Barbara Lee at our 25th anniversary.

Of the grants for which we applied two were denied, two gave us less than we asked for, one was an unsolicited grant, one was specifically in support of a campaign effort for Census 2020, and the last was a fundraiser by the Alameda County Ducal Council.

The acknowledgements received from the distinguished organizations remind us that we as a leadership organization have the responsibility to go forward with greater effectiveness and approach collaboration with our sister and brother organizations creating a network of support for our community.

We receive requests from other cities, counties and even beyond our California borders for advice or assistance. The need for an organization such as ours addressing the needs of elder LGBTQ citizens is very much sought after; therefore, we must make our core programs much more robust and effective.

Caring for our LGBTQ Partners, Friends, and Ourselves program will begin in May 2020 at the San Leandro Community Center. Depending on funds available, we hope to enlarge the program. The Friendly Visitor program will grow with more training and effectiveness and as you, the community step up your volunteerism we strengthen the safety climate for all – those in residential care facilities for the elderly, and those choosing to age in place.

The Safe and Visible program will teach our health and residential care providers to be more culturally sensitive to our population thereby providing greater understanding and dignity as we age.

We are building our infrastructure for sustainability and growth. We very much appreciate your sustained donations for those continued funds make it possible for our work to continue.

Service, education and advocacy will be our focus to assure that LGBTQ seniors are acknowledged, respected and appreciated for the diversity that it brings to a community.

Help us with our work. Join us. Support the organizations which provide us grants, like the Alameda Ducal Council, the Horizon Foundations and other foundations. The more that our service is visible, the more people will respond. We welcome your participation for we need feet on the ground in our Friendly Visitor program and our outreach events.

Complete the Census 2020 so that funding from the federal government can be distributed to our county as appropriated. Together we are stronger in having our voices heard and economic power applied. Consider Lavender Seniors in your will and provide legacy giving. Help us continue our leadership throughout the San Francisco Bay Area counties and help our network of care and concern for our elders be a large part of the LGBTQ community.

“And Still I Rise” presents Maya Angelou’s incredible life journey. A singer. Dancer, activist, poet, and writer, she inspired generations with lyrical modern African American thought that pushed boundaries. She gave people the freedom to think about their history in a way they never had before. This unprecedented film weaves her words with rare and intimate archival photograph and videos. From her upbringing in the Depression-era South to her work with Malcolm X in Ghana and her inaugural poem for President Bill Clinton, this film an incredible journey through the life of a true American icon.

Of particular note to the LGBTQ community, her role as an ally was cemented by her support for same-sex marriage and for being the first to ever use the word "gay" at an inauguration via her inaugural poem, "On the Pulse of Morning," for Bill Clinton's 1993 inauguration.

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS INCREASES IN 2020
Sarah Kim-Lee, Social Security Regional Public Affairs Specialist & ACA Commissioner

Each year, we announce the annual cost-of living adjustment (COLA). By law, federal benefits increase when the cost of living rises, as measured by the Department of Labor’s Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers (CPI-W). Usually, there is an increase in the benefit amount people will receive each month, starting the following January. Nearly 69 million Americans will see a 1.6 percent increase in their Social Security benefits and SSI payments in 2020.

Other changes that will happen in January 2020 reflect the increase in the national average wage index. For example, the maximum amount of earnings subject to Social Security payroll tax will increase to $137,700 from $132,900. The earnings limit for workers who are younger than "full" retirement age (age 66 for people born in 1943 through 1954) will increase to $18,240. (We deduct $1 from benefits for each $2 earned over $18,240.) The earnings limit for people turning 66 in 2020 will increase to $48,600. (We deduct $1 from benefits for each $3 earned over $48,600 until the month the worker turns age 66.) In December 2019, we will post Social Security COLA notices online for retirement, survivors, and disability beneficiaries who have a Social Security account.

You will be able to view and save future COLA notices via the Message Center inside the My Social Security website.
